Big Democratic Demonstration at Co- Blaine's Journey Through the Empire lumbus-Gov. Cleveland Writes a Letter.

[Columbus (Ohio) telegram.]

This has been a field day for the Democracy of this city and adjoining cities and towns within a radius of 150 miles. The weather has been all that could have been asked for, clear, cool, and pleasant. The Democratic clubs from adjoining cities and towns coll menced arriving early this morning by special trains, and continued to pour in all day. Never in the history of the Democratic party has there been such an of the Democratic party has there been such an outpouring as witnessed to-day. The Democrats have been planning and 1 reparing for this demonstration for over a month, and its magnitude his even surprised its originators. Four speaking stands were put up in the State House and with accepted with the second card. ard, with arched gas-jets, to accommodate

A large meeting was held this afternoon at Comstock's Opera House, addressed by Schator Havard, of Delaware, who was introduced by Alen G. Thurman in a neat and complimentary speech. Schator Bayerla references speech. Senator Baxard referred to the ary speech. Schator hagard reteried to the time the party was in such a small minor ty in the Schate, and if it had worked together would have succeeded in getting a good govern-ment. He believed one-half of the Rejublicans did not believe Hayes and Wheeler were elected. He traced the workingsof the Repub-li an party for the last twenty-four years and in the convention, showing that Blaine's nomination was a national and logical outcome or it; he said the candidates were types of the party; he referred to Carl Schurz in a complimentary manner; cla med that the use of public power was everywhere prevalent; he claimed that the great leagues were working with the backing of monopolies fer Blaine, but with the uprising of the masses he believed the Democratic principles would succeed Gov. Hendricks arrived at the opera-house about 5 p. m. and received a perfect ovation. He returned thanks in a very graceful manner, He returned thanks in a very graceful manner, accepting it as a party compliment on account of the principles he represented. He said he had witnessed great demonstrations all along the line of his route between Indianapolis and Columbus, and claimed both Indiana and, Ohio confidently for the Democrats. Letters were read from Gen, Breckenridge, E. K. Apgar, Stilson Hutchins, and others. In the evening the following distinguished and well-known Democratic crators and leaders spoke: Governor Thomas A. Hendricks, Governor Robert M. McManca George H. Pendleton, John A. McMahon, G. H. Bargar, Speaker John G. Carlisle, Gen. Charles H. Mansur, Gen. Durbin Ward, D. S. Gooding, Gen. E. sur, Gen. Durbin Ward, D. S. Gooding, Gen. E. B. Finley, Thomas F. Bayard, and others. The B. Finley, Thomas F. Bayard, and others. The procession moved promptly at eight o'clock, and High street, for over two miles, was one mass of banners and blazing torches.

Gov. Hendricks' speech was in substance about the same as delivered heretofore. He dwelt quite freely on the necessity of a change in the administration of public affairs. He was likely and the same as the control of the same as the same as the control of the same as the control o listened to by a large audience, as were all the following letter was received and read Gov. Cleveland: OUTIVE MANSION, ALBANY, Sept. 21, 1884. My Dean Sin: I very much regret that the pressure of official duties will prevent my joining you at the meeting to be held at Columius on the 25th inst. I hope the meeting will be a complete success, and that it will be the means of increasing the enthusiasm already aroused increasing the cuthustasm already aroused to the course of meeting will be a for the cause of good government. I be-lieve that the voters of the country are fully alive to the necessity of installing an administration of public affairs which shall be truly their own, not only because it is the result of their choice, but because its selected instrumentalities are directly from the body of the people, and impressed with the people's thoughts and sentiment. They are tired, I think, of a rule so long continued that it has bred and fostered a class standing between them and their political action, and whose interests in aftheir political action, and whose interests in affairs end with partisan zeal and the advancement of personal advantage. Let me remind the people that if they seek to make their public servants feel their direct responsibility to them, and careful of their interests, their objects will not be accomplished by a blind adherence to a party which has grown arrogant with long continued power.

Let us impress upon the people that the issue involved in the people of the graph.

nvolved in the pending canvass is the estab-lishment of a pure and honest administration of their Government. Let us show them the way to this and warn them against any con-ningly designed effort to lead them into other paths of irrelevant discussion.

With these considerations before them, and with an earnest presentation of our claims to the confidence of the people and of their responsibility, we need not tear the result of their intelligent action. Yours very truly, GROVER CLEVELAND.

To Allen G. Thurman. BUTLER.

He Talks to the Farmers of the Granite State.

[Plymouth (N. H.) dispatch.]
The feature of the third day of the Grafton County fair was the presence of Gen. Butler. He was accompanied by Moedy Merrill, a stock-holder of the a sociation, who, in the absence of the President, introduced Butler to the large of the President, introduced Butler to the large gathering. Butler apologized for his hoarseness, and said he supposed his hearers were of mixed politics—very much so—therefore his remarks would be somewhat mixed, hitting all alike. The Democrats want to get into power where they, can be tempted, but they would do no better than the Republicans. All we desire is for the producers to enjoy the fruits of their labors. If the Government will do the laborious as a fixed particular to the laborator and the laborator and the laborator and the laborator. ment will give the laboring-man a fair chance he would be satisfied. He did not leave the he would be satisfied. He did not leave the Chicago Convention because he was not nominated, for his name was not presented. He did not let it go in, as he did not wish to be bound. Had he desired it would have been presented. Democratic free-trade orators say the tariff makes you pay too much for everything. What is the tariff! It is a toll. Ignorant Democratic orators talk sometimes as if it was something to eat. [Applause.] Gen. Butler considered the railroad rates, and said: "The Legislature is owned by the railroads, and the remedy lies in sending men to the Legislature who cannot be corrunted. to the Legislature who cannot be corrupted. The Republican party had a grand record. The Democratic party had a grand old record under Jackson, but Jackson has been dead these forty years, and he left no children. But you must look out and think and act for yourselves." [A voice—'How would it do to vote for St. John?"]
The Gener I replied: "If inclined to drink too much whisky you had better do it. [Applause.]
If you do not think for your sold. If you do not think for yourself it means revo-lution, and revolution means the bullet."-Gen. Butler was heartily cheered at the close

Torrence, Gen. Logan, W. D. Kelley, and others. The senior class of Washington and Jefferson College, Blaine's alma mater, was presented to Gen. Logan and he expressed great pleasure in seeing them. At 2 o'clock the procession was formed. Gen. Logan entered his carriage, and with Congressman Goff, Powell Clayton, W. P. Hubbard, and other members of the State committee in carriages, joined the procession and proceeded to the State Fair grounds on the island. Gen. Logan was introduced and made Anderson of Ohio, and Gen. Goff of West Virginia. Gen. Torrence did not speak. The procession to-night was much larger than to-day, and was reviewed by Gen. Logan and Gen. Torrence. The fireworks were magnificent. W. D. Kelley addressed the Republicans on the tariff at the Opera House.

JOHN KELLY declines to be a candidate for the Tammany nomination for Mayor of New York. THE Independent (anti-Blaine Republican) organization is doing more work in Massachusetts than the regular Democrats. THE San Francisco Bulletin will not be much surprised if the Republicans of California elect four of the six Representatives to be chosen in that State this fall. All six are now Democrats. EDITOR MCCUNE, of the Buffalo Courier, has made a wager of $1,000 with Col. Hooker, Vermont member of the National Republican Committee, that Cleveland carries New York. He also bets Hooken $100 that Vermont does not give Blaine 24,000 majority. GEN. BUTLER proposes to make fifty set speeches in New York.

FROM NEW YORK TO BUFFALO

State-Hand-Shaking and Speech-Making.

Mr. Blaine left New York for his Western tour on the morning of Sept. 24. Stops were made at all the principal towns along the route. At Peekskill, Cold Spring, Fishkill, Poughkeepsie, and Hudson large crowds gathered at the depots to get a sight of the Republican Presidential candidate, who made a brief spech ateach stopping-place. Albany was reached at each stopping-place. Albany was reached at 1.45 p.m. An immense crowd was in waiting, every available toot of ground being occupied, with many on the tops of cars and on the roof of the depot. Mr. Blaine was presented by the Hon. Hamilton Harris, and stood towing for some time before getting a chance to speak. When the cheering sub-ided he made a short address, and retired amid great applause. After leaving Albany the hist halt was made at S henectady. The Presidential candidate was presented to the crowd by Judge Potter, and made another speech. The same scenes were repeatsented to the crowd by Judge Potter, and made another speech. The same scenes were repeated at Fonda, Fort Plain, Little rails, Herkimer, Canastota, Utica and Rome. At Syramse, where the train arrived at nightfall, the Republicans made a great demonstration in honer of their candidate. All the local marching clubs turned out with torches, and were reviewed by Mr. Blaine from a stand erected for the purpose. He addressed the crowdas follows:

"This wast assemblage is far more eloquent than any words I could speak. It tells far more of the popular current and popular drift reof the popular current and popular drift respecting public questions than anything I could say, and, therefore, respecting toose topics I shall say nothing, but shall confine myself to simple but heartfelt thanks for so much of this grand demonstration as may in any degree be grand demonstration as may in any degree be attributed to myself as a personal compliment. I am sure, however, that it wouldable great vanity in me to assume that more than a small part of it is so intended—that it is rather the expression of the people of this noble Empire State touching public questions, which I shall leave others to discuss when I bid you, as I now do, a cordial good-night.

It was almost 11 o'clock when Mr. Blaine left the stand and repaired to Senator McCarthy's house, where he passed the night. Channey Depew addressed the meeting after Mr. Blaine left. Speeches were made at the other stands Depew addressed the meeting after Mr. Blaine left. Speeches were made at the other stands by Martin I. Townsend and James W. The people hocked into the room where sit.

Blaine was, and ke had to stop and shake hands with them. One of the incidents of the morning was an old farmer, who plushed his way to the front and said: "Your honor, I have some fine cattle out that at that fair, and I want you to look at 'em and let me know whether they've got the cattle disease or not." Mr. Blaine smiled, and said he was not much of a judge of cattle. He was escorted to the carriage and driven around the grounds, after which he was introduced to the cowd and said:

"There is no year in the history of the United States in which, through all its bor lers, the agriculturist has rejoiced as he does this year.
There are no politics in agriculture. The crop for Democrat and for Republican is alike good or alike bad. The need of product is alike to Democrat and to Republican. We meet, therefore, on the agricultural fair stround, if nowhere else, on the broad plane of American citizenship, which is a much higher title than Demo-rat or else, on the broad plane of American citizenship, which is a much higher title than Democrat or Repblican. It is in that capacity I stand before you this morning, and it is in that capacity I extend to you my congratulations and my very hearty thanks for your generous reception."

The party then returned to the city, and the trip to the West was resumed. At Auburn the arrival of the train was heralded by the firing of cannon and the explosion of torpedoes. Mr. Blaine was introduced and spoke as follows:

"I thank you, citizens of Cuyuga County, for this reception. Beenfess that I am glad to be here. I am glad to visit the home of William H. See ard. If there be among the statesmen of the past one who more deserves the admiration and gratitude of the American people than your great citizen I do not know his name, and if there be a higher statesmanship in the annals of America tifan was shown by Mr. Seward from 1849 to the close of the civil war, I know not where it was recorded, and we may all learn great lessons from recalling his fistory, and may well profit by his example. If we are Republicans we shall be quickened in our zeal, and if Democrats we shall learn, toleration, if simply American citizens we shall be warned and American citizens we shall be warmed and stimulated in our patrictism. It is as a humble representative of the great principles which Seward yindicated throughout his illustrious Seward vyndicated throughout his illustrous life that I am before you to-day. But I am not here to make a political speech; I am here only to acknowledge with gratitude and thankfulness the great cordiality of your reception, and to wish you abundant prosperity and happi-

After leaving Auburn the train proceeded to Waterloo before making any lengthy stop. At Cayuga and Seneca, Falls large crowds were at the depots, and cheers were given for Blaine as the train passed slowly through those villages. At Waterloo an immense, crowd gathered at the depot. Mr. Biaine and party were taken to the fair grounds, headed by a band. Arriving on the grounds, Mr. Biaine expressed his thanks to the cities. Leonard Burritt introduced Mr. Blaine, who spoke as follows:

At Geneva, Clifton Springs, and Canandalgua-brief stops were made, and at 5 p. m. the train-reached Rochester. Mr. Blaine took an open carriage, and with his party was driven to the Court House steps, preceded by an immense-procession, comprising all the Blaine clubs of the city, and also many from the surrounding cities. Leonard Burritt introduced Mr. Blaine, who stoke as follows:

"I am sure that no desire to offer a personal compliment to any living man could have brought this vast audience together, and I have not the vanity to accept it as offered to myself personally. It is rather the expression by this great assemblage of the people of Western New York of their confidence in those principles which have brought prosperity to our country, and have builded your own beautiful city as one of the exemplars and illustrations of that prosperity. The Republican party embodies in its creed four distinct and most important doctrines. First-Peace with the whole world. Second—Commercial expansion in every practicable Commercial expansion in every practicable direction. Third—Encouragement of every form of American industry. Fourth—Protecform of American industry. Fourth—Protection to every citizen, native or civilized, at home or abroad. Under these policies the Republican party strives to conduct the Government. Under these principles the Republican party submits itself to the judgment of the American people. On these principles we conquer, or on these we are conquered. I thank yon, gentlemen, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for whatever in this splendid evation is personal to myself. But I ask your attention with especial emphasis to the importance of those positions to which I have so briefly adverted. To the latest hour of my life I never can forget this brilliant scene, nor can I mistake its wide significance." significance.

Leaving Rochester, the train proceeded to Batavia, where the Presidential candidate spoke Batavia, where the Presidential candidate spoke as follows:

"I am profoundly obliged by your generous reception. I have reached almost the western end of your State, and from its great metroporis to this point I have received unmeasured kindness; but it would be sheer vanity if I were to attribute these popular demonstrations to any mere personal motive. I know better; I know these lavish compliments are intended, not for me personally, but as a mark of confidence in the great and for twenty-four years triumphant party which I have been chosen to represent. The future of that great party is in the hands of the people of New York. I trust that it is in safe hands. I bid you good-night."

Buffalo was reached at 8 o'clock p. m. The crowd was dense in the station and the reception committee formed into line with some difficulty. Mr. Blaine preceded them, and leaning on the arm of his son, went to his carriage. When he took his seat the crowd took up the cheering which had been begun in the station, and Blaine responded by raising his hat. His carriage then moved to its place in the line and dropped out of the procession before it had finished the march and drove to the hotel, where he went to his room and shortly mounted the balcony, from whence he reviewed the Republican procession, embracing several thousand torch-bearers. It was late when the reviewended, and Mr. Blaine was too much fatigued for a speech. He merely said: "My sincere thanks and a cordial good-night," and retired.

After spending the night in Buffalo, Mr. Blaine and his party took the frain the next morning and proceeded westward. and his party took the frain the next and proceeded westward.

Carl Schurz at Cincinnati.

[Cincinnati (Ohio) telegram.] Carl Schurz addressed a largessudience at the Highland House pavilion to-night. Mr. Schurz summed up the charges of official corruption against Mr. Blaine by claiming that the correspondence between Warren Fisher and Mr. Blaine clearly proved the transaction therein mentioned to be unworthy of a man holding the position of Speaker of the House of Representatives. Mr. Schurz's remarks implied that the letters to and from Mr. Blaine were sufficient proof of the accusations that had been brought against him.

A St. JOHN and Daniel electoral ticket has been put in the field in Kentucky.
